without reaching a conclusion.

The House provision conferring on the President authority to place the Interstate Commerce Commission under the control of the proposed department proved to be the principal feature of difference, the representatives of the House standing out stiffly for the House provision and the Senate representatives contending as firmly for its elimination from the bill.

All the Senate conferees—Messrs, Hanna, Nelson and Clay—stood together on this point. Senator Clay went so far as to say that he would never agree to a report accepting the House provision.

The House conferees indicated a willingness to accept the amendment, suggested by Senator Nelson and endorsed by the Senate Committee on Commerce for the contended of trusts, and members of the conference express the opinion that that provision will be incorporated in the bill without substantial change.

The conferees meet again to-morrow.
